BRITISH TO RELEASE

KENNETH WOOD TRIEST.

Arrested as German Spy—Asks Father to Come and Get Him.

New York, Nov. 5.—Wolfgang Gustave Triest, a contractor of this city, declared tonight that he had received messages by cable from the British authorities in London, announcing that his son, Kenneth Wood Triest, who is under arrest there charged with being a German spy, would be permitted to return to this country and asking Mr. Triest to come to London and get him. Mr. Triest said he would sail for England on the American liner New York tomorrow.

For weeks the case of Triest, who is only 19 years old and a former Princeton student, has been a subject of diplomatic correspondence between Washington and London. The lad disappeared from Princeton last January. Last summer Mr. Triest received a telegram from the state department in Washington informing him that Kenneth was prisoner in the Tower of London, under arrest as a spy.

The trial of Kenneth Triest for espionage was postponed several times at the request of the state department, the father of the prisoner submitting evidence that indicated his son was not responsible for the things he was accused of doing, the principal charge being that he had enlisted in the British navy for the purpose of obtaining information for the Germans.

Rendered by Jury After Judge Bennett Declined to Accept

Their First Verdict for $1,500—In Case Where Burnham's Tower Was Blown Over on Her Cottage at Pine Grove, Niantic.

Judge William L. Bennett in the superior court here on Friday afternoon charged the jury in the case of Mrs. Agnes H. Bronson vs. Joseph Burnham of East Lyme, in which she claimed $1,500 damages because of the blowing over of her cottage at Pine Grove, known as Burnham's tower, and also as Burnham's folly, fell upon and crushed her summer home, which was blown over in a high wind on March 1st, 1914.

He occupied about an hour in making the charge and they retired at 2:25 to the jury room to consider the case. They came back once to take for instructions whether they were to take into consideration the matter of interest and loss on investment in figuring any damages. The judge said no.

At 3:20 they returned and reported through Foreman E. A. Prentice of this city that they gave Mrs. Bronson a verdict to recover $1,500 damages.

Judge Bennett said that he declined to accept this verdict and directed them to reconsider the verdict, saying that he thought they had not taken into consideration that it was incumbent upon the plaintiff to show the amount of damages sustained by her.

After nearly another hour, the jury returned at 4:08 and this time gave a verdict for $1,250, which the judge said he would accept. Court then adjourned and the jury was excused until next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Frank L. McGuire and C. Hadlai Hull were attorneys for the plaintiff and C. S. Avery and Marion G. Davis for the defendant. The tower, which was erected in 1885 and had long been an object of interest at Pine Grove. It was erected by the father of the defendant in this case.

STATE'S RECEIPTS $100,000 MORE THAN YEAR AGO

According to Tentative Statement by State Treasurer.

A tentative statement prepared by the state treasurer of the American Revenue for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1915, shows receipts for the year amounted to $4,975,589, or about $100,000 more than the receipts of the previous year. The amount is the revenue of the state from ordinary sources and does not include the bond issue of $3,000,000 had Greece last year.

The tax on mutual life insurance companies realized a revenue of about $455,000, or $25,000 more than what the revenue tax on the same companies in 1914 to $430,000, the increase being attributed to the plan of advertising the payment of the tax in the newspapers, which the treasurer's statement followed last year more generally than before. The inheritance tax added $807,383 to the revenue of the state, or about $125,000 more than last year. The state received from towns for highway improvements, $312,000, or $18,000 more than last year. Receipts from the tax on steam railroads were $40,000 less than last year. In 1914 and the trolley roads fell off $41,000. In 1905 the state received from the trolley roads $1,204,936. Last year the amount was a little more than a half million. These figures show the effect on the revenues of the state of the depreciation in the value of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company stock.

During 1915 there were no temporary loans of $1,000,000, as was mounted to $690,000. It is believed in the treasury department that it will not be necessary to issue bonds to raise additional revenue for the coming fiscal year, nor will it be necessary to borrow money on short time notes. This, however, is a mere matter of degree and the treasury department has anything more than a good basis. While the receipts will be a great deal larger, owing to the new taxes, than ever before, it should not be forgotten that a half million dollars will be taken from them for the sinking fund, which goes into existence and the deficit is lessened to the purpose of meeting the state bonds as they mature.

CURTIS SUCCEEDS PARSONS.

Appointed as Special Agent of State Labor Bureau.

Labor Commissioner William S. Hyde announced Friday the appointment of Oron F. Curtis of New Britain to succeed George A. Parsons, resigned, as special agent of the state labor bureau.

Oron F. Curtis was born Feb. 4, 1885, in Hartford, and was the son of Joel and Abigail Curtis, who descended from colonial ancestry. His great-grandfather, Lemuel Curtis, of Farmington, N. H., was one of the first men from that village to go into the Revolutionary war. The first of the family settled at Salem in 1638.

Curtis received a common school education going to work on a farm when 16 years of age. Afterward he was apprenticed as a carpenter, which trade he followed.

As a contractor he had charge of the erection of some of the government reservation buildings on Fisher's Island. He built a number of the commercial buildings in Hartford and did considerable real estate development work.

BRITAIN HAS REVOKED

EXEMPTION OF WHEAT.

On Vessels loading in the United States Before December 15.

London, Nov. 5, 4:35 a. m.—The Times today announces that the British government already has revoked the decision exempting from requisition vessels loading wheat in the United States before December 15. The reason for the revocation was that vessels employed in the carrying of important trades had applied for exemption and if exemptions were freely granted the fleets from which the vessels could be relinquished in the future would have been steadily diminished.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 5.—An investigation into the distribution of alleged fake false ballots at a number of polling places last Tuesday in an effort to defeat the woman's suffrage movement in Allegheny county will be made, according to District Attorney R. H. Jackson, who declared that under the law the firm that printed the ballots is guilty as well as whoever ordered the printing.

ITALIAN STEAMER SUNK.

London, Nov. 5, 9:10 p. m.—The Italian steamer Ionia has been sunk according to an announcement here tonight. The Ionia was a vessel of 1,216 tons. She was built in 1885 and was owned at Palermo by the Navigazione Generale Italiana.

Argentina is getting more of the business than any other country except the United States.

SECOND PROGRAMME BY NORWICH MUSIC ASSOCIATION

To Include Works of Cesar Franck, Claude Debussy and Emil Sjogren.

In their programme for next Tuesday evening, the second of the season which the members of this Norwich organization will be privileged to attend, the music will be from the works of three modern composers—Cesar Franck, Claude Debussy and Emil Sjogren. It is the aim through this programme which is to be rendered entirely by Norwich musicians, to bring before the association some of the great modern works, compositions which have not been heard here before.

Cesar Franck was the founder of the modern French school and his music will be represented by his Violin Sonata, considered by many to be one of the most beautiful sonatas which have been written.

Cesar Franck was born in Liege, Belgium, Dec. 10, 1822. The Francks claim descent from a family of Wallonian painters, so that the tradition of artistic seeing to have been handed down in the family. At the age of 12 the boy had completed his studies at the local school in Liege, and the following year was entered as a pupil of the Paris Conservatoire, taking composition under Labonne and piano with Zimmermann. With his marriage in 1848 in Paris to the young actress, Mlle. Desmousseaux, began the methodical life of drudgery which Franck supported with unflinching cheerfulness almost with enthusiasm, as long as he lived. Setting aside two hours of the early morning for what he called "his own work"—reading, study or composition—the rest of the day was given to teaching or practice. His pupils lived all over Paris. From morning till night he went from lesson to lesson, so eager to be at work that he ran rather than walked along the streets.

In 1858 Franck was appointed organist of Sainte Clotilde, and here, in the dust of this organ loft, he spent the best part of his life. Here he came every Sunday and feast day, and toward the end of his life every Friday morning, too—fanning the fire of his genius by pouring out his spirit in wonderful improvisations which were often more lofty in thought than many skillfully elaborated compositions. For Cesar Franck had, or rather was, the genius of improvisation and no other modern organist would bear the most distant comparison with him in this respect. He was appointed professor of organ at the Conservatoire in 1872. Franck's last years were made happy by the success of his violin sonata, played by Eugene Ysaie all over the world and by the unexpected salvation given him on the performance of his string quartette at the concert of the Societe Nationale, April 19, 1890. This first taste of popular appreciation came to him late, in his 68th year, but long neglected had not embittered him, and he received the plaudits with the calm of the sage, saying to the group of friends about him: "There you see, the public is beginning to understand me."

Three songs of Debussy will be on the programme—Evening, Romance, and The Mandoline.

Claude Debussy, the foremost French composer of our time, did not at all child show any decided musical aptitude. Happening one day to be at the house of his aunt in Cannes, she conceived the idea that it would be for him to study the piano. Nothing remarkable came of these fugitive lessons, which were abandoned when the child returned to his home. Later the mother of Charles de Byry, who had herself studied with Chopin, discovered the boy's unusual talent, and through her instruction and influence he entered the Paris Conservatory in 1875.

When in his 22d year he won the Prix de Rome it was the unanimous opinion of the jury that the score was the most interesting that had been heard of the institute for many years. He has written many songs—suggestions, impressions, pictures of delicate and evasive moods, containing much that is of typical beauty in thought and utterance, and for which the verses of such poets as Verlaine and Piere Louys have served to stimulate the composer's fancy. Although we may appraise its value or marvel at its methods, the inner beauty of Debussy's music cannot, in the last analysis, be argued about. It must remain, for those to whose imagination it appeals, a potent magic, an accent of rare and insinuating charm.

Among the composers of modern Swedish composers, and one whose work is little known in this country, is Emil Sjogren, at present living in Stockholm. The composition of his which has been chosen for this programme is his Violin Sonata, a work in the usual sonata form, but having distinct individuality, the second movement being particularly beautiful.

Sjogren (pronounced Shay-gren) was born at Stockholm, Sweden, Jan. 6, 1852. Many critics class him as the greatest of the Swedish composers of modern times. He has employed folk material in his works, but they are not so representative as the works of Grieg. His early studies were conducted at the Conservatoire at Stockholm, but his principal work was done at Berlin. When he was 30 he made an extensive tour of Europe, visiting Paris, Munich, Venice and Vienna. Since 1891, however, he has confined his activities to Stockholm, where he is organist of the Johannes-kyrka. He is not famed for compositions in larger forms, but rather for pieces of high artistic finish and exquisite content.

Incidents In Society

Mrs. Eben Learned of Huntington Place was in Hartford Friday.

Mrs. Ozias Dodge and son, John Dodge, left Friday for a visit in New York.

Mrs. Mary A. C. Norton of Warren street returned Friday evening from spending the summer at Rockland, Maine.

Invitations were received Friday by members of the Eastern Connecticut Mt. Holyoke Alumnae association to meet at the Woman's college, Nov. 13, with Miss Mary Davis, librarian. President F. H. Sykes will be present during the social hour, when tea will be served.
